Farm Work for Winter.

We have a word to say to you. Meesrs armers, for which we ask your very earnattention We sek it both for your wo interest and the interest of this overpardoned, paper ridden city. You are in the regular practice of hiring in summer laborers from the city, both men and women, at such wages as you may; and o this we do not complain-it is your right but it is not right that you should employ them of such wages as only serve to feed & clothe their families during warm weather, and as soon as Winter approaches sond them back for us to feed liste in the city will Spring. Such is the case, and ever has been, since the great influx of foreign Immigration has centered in New York. - So he poor bruised heart within him burns good days to lay these stones into wall. year to trim, your orchard; and upon most of your land as good a month as any to set out trees, either fruit, shade or cimber.

Every good day in November should be used by every owner of clay land in plowing, because of exposure of the soil to the Winter frosts is as good as a fair ressing of manure

Any tarmer who suffers Christmas to come upon him before he has got an ice-house rendy for the first good time to fill it, is lacking good common sense. There are but few farms in America where an ice-house is radiant. The sun is not like the moon would not be worth double the cost of fillirg and keeping in repair and interest upon ed light. God has given it light in itself; the cost.

The work that should always be done in Winter, but is most neglected, is getting home and cutting up a Summer supply of wood To neglect this, is perhaps the worst of all farm economy. Getting out and hauling fencing stuff is another kind of proper winter work. All the lumber hauling should be done in snowy countries upon the sled, but is often neglected because the farmer flash through them all, and fiff the world
